Minnesota’s Forgotten Middle

Middle-skill jobs, which require education beyond high school but not a four-year degree, make up the largest part of America’s and Minnesota’s labor market. Key industries in Minnesota are unable to find enough sufficiently trained workers to fill these jobs.

Demand for Middle-Skill Jobs is Strong
Fifty-one percent of all jobs in 2012 were middle-skill.

Demand for Middle-Skill Jobs Will Remain Strong
Between 2010-2020, 49 percent of job openings will be middle-skill.

A Middle-Skill Gap
Middle-skill jobs account for 51 percent of Minnesota’s labor market, but only 47 percent of the state’s workers are trained to the middle-skill level.
